

Five Poems for Technology Lovers

JOSÉ ROBERTO SARAVIA VARGAS

So You're Buying a Tablet Online?

Can you buy one for me, too?
Of course,
I'll pay you for it.
In installments...
Small
And very distanced.

Time to Upgrade

When is the right time
To upgrade your computer?
When the poor beaten machine
Has lost its motherboard
Or when the hard drive
Has utterly failed?
Or maybe it is better
When they tell you
That your hardware
—Your perfectly healthy hardware—
Is not good enough
To house the new OS.

Easter Egg

=rand(200,99)
And the quick brown fox will jump.
No.
The lazy dog won't notice.
Where did Easter Eggs
Go in 2007?
Computers are not fun anymore.

Revenge

Catherine, you keep
Messing with me;
Using weapons
Unknown to me
Scorching the ground
Blasting my tank.
Of course, you know
How a machine works
Because you are a software-generated foe.
But this will turn things over:
Today I discovered
the game's saving feature.

Technologically Literate

I am highly skilled with computers:
I can type text documents,
Create pivot tables,
And make PP Presentations.
Yet, I don't know how to save using [odt

Calc is beyond my reach
And I envy OpenGL transitions
—Even though I don't know
That's their name—
Yes! I'm technologically literate!
I was well-trained indeed.

